The diagram illustrates the evolution of map design from a traditional, detailed style to a modern, streamlined style. On the left, the traditional map includes a legend with a purple square for 'Military' and a grey rectangle for 'Inset'. The map itself shows a dense network of lines representing various features: 'All Roads' (solid black lines), 'Railroad' (lines with cross-ticks), 'Pipe/Power Line' (lines with small squares), 'Physical Feature' (dashed lines), and 'Non-visible Boundary' (dotted lines). On the right, the modern map uses a similar legend but with a grey rectangle for 'Inset'. It features a streamlined network of lines: 'Stream/Shoreline' (solid blue lines), 'Intermittent Stream' (dashed blue lines), 'River/Lake' (solid light blue areas), and 'Glacier' (dashed light blue areas). The modern map also includes a 'Military' symbol (purple square) and an 'Inset' symbol (grey rectangle).

The plotted map scale is 1:9600
